

Military Labour History Working Group

September 2024 Workshop

Our next workshop will be held on Friday 20 September 2024 (see time zones below). Current WG workshops are linked to the development of our edited book project on visual sources and material artefacts in military labour history research. We are opening all remaining workshops on the edited book project to any interested members of the MLHWG.

For further information about the book project, see:

<https://socialhistoryportal.org/news/articles/311389>

Here are the details:

Time: CDT 7-8am; EEST 3pm-4pm; EDT 8-9am; GMT 12n-1pm; CEST 2-3pm; AEST 10-11pm; IST 5.30pm. Note: may be subject to change.

Meeting format: We will have two presenters, Pratyay Nath on “Military Labour in the Courtly Paintings of the Mughal Empire” and Terese Peláez-Domínguez on “Representing forced labour in the navy’s service: Slaves and convicts in the Mediterranean galleys and ports of the Early Modern period”. The speakers will be introducing their intended chapters for the book. We will then invite feedback from attendees on the proposed chapter, thinking especially on how it contributes to the key theme of the book – moving beyond traditional textual primary sources to reveal new knowledge about military labour history.

Meeting Venue: Zoom

If you would like to attend, please contact militarylabourhistory@gmail.com with your details and we will send you the Zoom link.

The next workshop is TBA.
